

Travel Guide.

Staying on track — and still enjoying yourself — while travelling for work or holiday.

Travel Tips

When travelling for work, it's important to maintain structure and routine, as your schedule is often packed and energy levels need to be sustained throughout meetings and tasks. Focus on quick, healthy meals, snacks that are easy to grab, and staying hydrated to keep your energy up without derailing your goals.

On holiday, there's more room for flexibility and indulgence, but balance is key. While it's important to enjoy the local food and relax, try to stick to mindful eating - mixing healthy choices with treats and staying active through sightseeing or leisure activities to maintain your progress.

Here are some tips:

Tailor Your Experience to Your Goals

Before embarking on your Shift & Sustain journey while travelling, take a moment to define your objectives. This program offers you the flexibility to decide whether you wish to focus on continued weight loss or opt for maintenance to allow for more relaxation and flexibility during your trip. The choice is yours—either approach aligns with your unique goals.

Balance Your Meals with the Nutrition Formula

While on your journey, sticking to a high-carb/low-carb or medium/medium meal structure will help maintain consistency. This formula supports your fat loss progress while allowing room for flexibility, based on your preferences.

Start the Day Right

Eating breakfast within an hour of waking is key to stabilising your blood sugar levels, setting you up for a balanced and energetic day. A well-planned breakfast can prevent mid-morning hunger and overeating later in the day.

Stay Hydrated

Hydration is even more important in a warmer climate. Be sure to drink plenty of water throughout the day, especially since you'll naturally lose more fluid through sweat. Bring a reusable water bottle to ensure you can stay hydrated during travel and on excursions.

Mindful Eating

Even while indulging in new cuisines, remain mindful of your hunger cues. Aim to eat until satisfied, avoiding the feeling of being overly full or stuffed. Practising mindful eating will help you enjoy your meals while staying on track.

Stick to Three Meals a Day (Plus Snacks if Needed)

Maintaining the program's structure of three meals a day will provide a reliable foundation. If hunger strikes between meals, don't hesitate to have a snack. Allowing yourself to get too hungry makes it harder to make healthy choices later.

Plan Ahead for Your Travel

Plan your travel meals and snacks in advance. Consider bringing healthy, portable snacks like Nakd bars, nuts, seeds, dried fruit, and popcorn to avoid being forced into unhealthy choices at airports or train stations.

Assess Local Food Availability

Before you leave, research the availability of food and shops at your destination. It may be worth bringing staples like porridge oats or decaf tea bags if you're unsure whether they'll be available.

Food Journaling

Continue logging your meals and snacks in your food journal to maintain accountability and keep track of your progress. Journaling helps you stay mindful of what you consume, even while enjoying yourself abroad.

Plan Your Meals at Restaurants

Research the restaurants you plan to visit in advance and review their menus online. This allows you to make healthy choices ahead of time, preventing impulse decisions when you're there.

Prepare for Excursions

For days when you're out and about, consider what food and drink options will be available. Should you bring snacks, a bottle of water, or even arrange for hard-boiled eggs or fresh fruit from your hotel? Being prepared keeps you on track.

Embrace Fresh Fruit

In warmer climates, take advantage of the abundance of fresh fruit, which can be refreshing and hydrating. Watermelon, for example, is a delicious and healthy choice.

Mind Your Drink Choices

Alcohol consumption may be part of your experience, but be mindful of the intake. Track it in your food journal to keep yourself accountable. You can be flexible with alcohol, allowing for indulgences, but ensure this aligns with your personal goals.

Flexibility with Food and Drinks

Indulgences like desserts, ice creams, or cocktails can be enjoyed, but how flexible you want to be is entirely up to you. If it aligns with your plan, savour these moments without guilt.

Plan Your Return Travel

Just as you planned for the trip out, consider what snacks and drinks you'll need for your journey home to avoid any unnecessary temptations.

Movement Opportunities

Take advantage of your surroundings to incorporate movement into your routine. Walking while sightseeing, swimming, or using the available fitness facilities can keep you active and engaged in your health goals.

By planning ahead and staying mindful, your Shift & Sustain program can be seamlessly integrated into your travels, ensuring that you return from your trip feeling both refreshed and empowered in your journey towards better health.

Meal Tips

When on holiday, finding the right balance in meals while still enjoying local cuisine can be key to maintaining progress in a weight loss programme. A helpful approach is to focus on a low-carb breakfast and lunch, followed by a higher-carb dinner that allows for more indulgence.

This may look like the following:
