Hello, Welcome to The WLA Community!

Really excited that you've registered for the 5 Day Fat Loss Reset — a midlife-friendly week designed to break the sugar cycle, settle your blood sugar and get the scales moving again.

No 1,200-calorie plans. No banned food lists. No starting over every Monday. Real food, real life, and a structure that actually fits a busy week.

Your 5-day wins

- Kickstart your weight loss — most women see 2-7 lbs shift by day 5, largely from reduced bloating and water retention.
- Sugar cravings handled — the afternoon snack pull starts fading within the first 1-3 days.
- Steady, balanced energy — no more mid-afternoon crashes or post-dinner slumps.
- Lighter, less bloated — clothes start fitting better by the end of the week.
- A reset you can keep going — habits that compound for the next 4 weeks, not a one-off you start over from on Monday.

Ready to feel better faster? Let's dive in.

Before you start the reset, we want to introduce The Weight Loss Academy (WLA) very briefly and share useful tips for getting started in the easiest way.

A Note From Our Founder

Anna Wallace

BSc Food & Nutrition
Registered Associate Nutritionist

This is the reset I built from 10 years coaching women over 45.

I'm a Registered Associate Nutritionist (BSc Food & Nutrition) and the founder of The Weight Loss Academy. Over the last 10 years my team and I have supported over 50,000 women — the majority of them in midlife — to lose weight without 1,200-calorie plans, banned food lists or starting over every Monday.

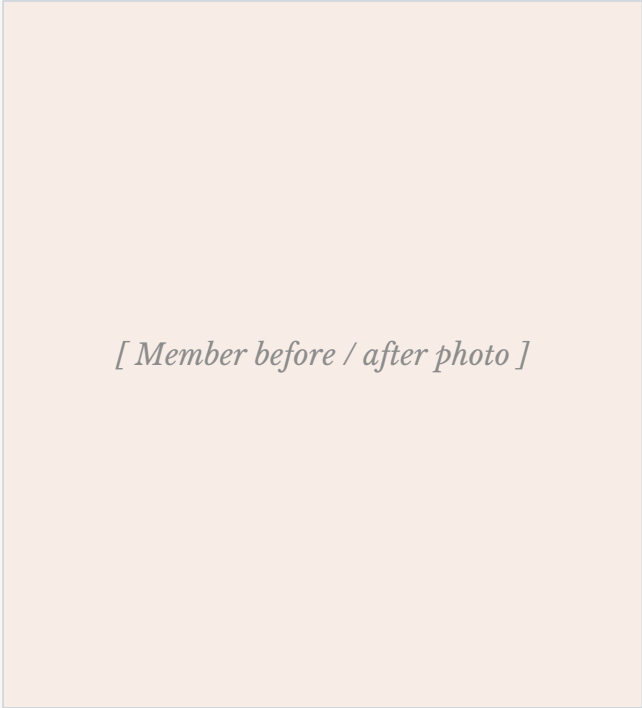

This 5 Day Reset is the entry point. It's the exact rhythm I use with paying clients to break the sugar cycle in 72 hours, settle blood sugar, and put a structure in place that actually fits a midlife week.

I once struggled with my weight too — Special K breakfasts, hours without food, evenings ending with takeaway or wine. Studying nutrition transformed me, and I built the WLA to give other women that same shift without the punishment.

If you're reading this, know that your goals are possible — even if you've tried everything else. Like mine, finding the right approach can change everything.

Important Tips for Getting Started

The 5 Day Fat Loss Reset meal guide can include whatever variation of the meal options you want — it's fully adjustable depending on the recipes and ingredients you like.

Pick the recipe you like most from the reset meal overview for each meal (breakfast, lunch, dinner and snack). Feel free to duplicate recipes that are easy to batch.

Feel free to swap each ingredient around. Or leave out ingredients you don't like. Season foods more if required.

Go with the flow of the recipes in the guide in terms of variety, or adjust and simplify by repeating meals more often. This will not impact results.

Meals

- Pick one breakfast for 5 days, or pick and choose from the guide if you want more variety.
- If unable to have one of the lunch recipes due to being out or busy, go for a protein-based salad, soup, or any egg dish.
- Repeat lunches more often if that's easier (e.g. an easy-batch recipe can cover multiple days).
- Always have a portion of protein in each meal. If having soup, have a piece of protein on the side such as a boiled egg or some meat / fish.

Drinks

- Aim to have only one milky coffee per day (i.e. latte / cappuccino). Tea and coffee with small amounts of milk are fine.
- Aim for 8 glasses of water per day approximately if you can (see the Drink Tips section for ideas on how to drink more water).

Snacks

- Aim for one bigger snack between lunch and dinner to manage appetite and sugar cravings. Snacking at other times of the day is fine — but only when physically hungry.

Portions

- If you feel it's too much food for you, don't eat it all. Listen to your body and don't eat just for the sake of eating.
- Eat until you've had enough and feel satisfied. Recipes are for 1 serving unless stated otherwise.

A note on perfection

- Don't expect perfection — just do your best. Five focused days beat five perfect ones you never start.
- If you slip up at lunch, the next meal is your chance to reset. Nothing is ruined.
- Tick off each day in the Facebook group — accountability compounds. By Friday you'll feel the difference.

The 5 Day Fat Loss Reset Guidelines

Stick to these eight simple principles and the reset will do the heavy lifting for you.

01

Eat breakfast

Within 1 hour of waking, every day.

02

Protein at breakfast

Sets satiety and steadies blood sugar for the day.

03

Protein at every meal

The single biggest lever for staying full.

04

Reduce processed foods

And added sugars — cut packaged shortcuts where you can.

05

3 meals + smart snacks

Eat 3 meals; snack only when truly hungry.

06

Hydrate

At least 8 glasses of water per day.

07

Move daily

Even a 20-minute walk counts.

08

Dairy-free at breakfast?

Add a scoop of protein powder to keep protein up.

The Food Swop List

Every single ingredient can easily be changed — just swap with foods from the same group.

The meals and recipes are flexible. Leave out any ingredients you do not enjoy, or replace with another alternative. Reduce or increase flavours to your own liking.

Fruits and vegetables can be changed. If you do not like carrots, swap with peppers; courgettes with peas, etc.

If you do not want chicken, swap with another meat. If you do not like fish, swap with another protein. Use vegetarian sausages if you don't eat meat.

You can leave out ingredients you do not want, add or decrease herbs and spices, and taste everything to suit your preferences.

Everything can be adjusted — as long as the adjustment is done within the right group, you can still get the best possible results.

Drink Tips

Hydration is one of the quickest wins of the reset.

1. Get a pretty reusable water bottle

Keeping a water bottle handy serves as a visual reminder to drink more. Fill it before you leave home — and it's better for the planet than single-use bottles.

2. Add water to your daily routine

Drink at set points during the day — as soon as you wake, before a meal, while at your desk. Sipping consistently throughout the day makes hitting your fluid goals effortless.

3. Make it fruity

Add lemon, lime, orange, cucumber, watermelon, kiwi or strawberries. A few fresh mint leaves or other herbs work beautifully too.

4. Eat your water

Foods like lettuce, celery, cucumber, watermelon and grapefruit are loaded with water and packed with vitamins, minerals and antioxidants.

You can have one milky coffee (latte or cappuccino) per day. Multiple teas with a little milk are also fine — just make sure you're drinking water alongside.

Snack Tips

Three balanced meals, with snacks only when truly hungry.

The key is to listen to your body and respond to your own hunger signals.

Mid-morning snacks

Most people find they don't need a snack between breakfast and lunch. If you do feel genuinely hungry, choose a light option like a piece of fruit or raw vegetables.

Afternoon snacks

The gap between lunch and dinner tends to be longer, which is why many people benefit from a more substantial snack in the afternoon. We call these the “bigger” snacks. They help you avoid the 3pm slump and reduce the temptation to reach for sugary or processed foods.

Snack amounts — what's right for you?

- Very active or exercise regularly? You may benefit from additional bigger snacks to fuel your energy needs.
- Less active or sedentary? You might find you need fewer snacks.

We recommend limiting bananas to one per day, as they're more calorie-dense than other fruits.

Final tips

- Eat when you're hungry — not out of boredom or habit.
- Pause and check in with your body before reaching for a snack.
- Aim for nourishment — every bite is a chance to fuel your body well.

Fruit & Veg Snack Inspiration

Apples	Asparagus	Aubergine
Banana (max 1 per day)	Beetroot	Blackberries
Blueberries	Bok choy	Broccoli
Carrots	Celery	Cherries
Courgette	Cranberries (fresh)	Cucumber
Grapefruit	Grapes (1 cup)	Kelp
Kiwi	Mandarins	Mango
Melon	Mushrooms	Onions
Orange (1 large)	Pears	Peppers
Pineapple (1 cup)	Plums	Radishes
Raspberries	Spinach	Strawberries
Sugar snap peas (1 cup)	Tomatoes	Watercress

Bigger Snack Inspiration

Some women only need one bigger snack per day, others more. If you exercise regularly you may need more than someone less mobile.

We recommend a bigger snack between lunch and dinner to prevent sugar cravings. You may need another in the evening. Some days you may need two bigger snacks and some days one — tune in and be flexible.

- 3 crackers with nut butter, cream cheese, cottage cheese, hummus, avocado, cheddar or tuna
- 1 natural cereal bar of your choice (Nakd is a great option)
- Apple slices with 1 tablespoon of nut butter
- Small handful of nuts and raisins
- 1 banana sliced and topped with 1 tablespoon of nut butter
- 2 medjool dates with cream cheese or nut butter
- 1 cup of grapes and 1 boiled egg
- 2 boiled eggs
- 30g dark chocolate
- 1 cup of homemade popcorn
- 125g Greek yoghurt and fruit

Why Balanced Blood Sugar Supports Fat Loss

Maintaining balanced blood sugar levels is a key part of fat loss. Fluctuations in blood sugar drive cravings, energy crashes and over-eating. Keeping blood sugar steady supports your fat loss goals and your energy at the same time.

What balanced blood sugar gives you

- Reduced desire for sugar
- Improved mood
- More control around food
- Weight stabilises / weight reduction
- Reduced cravings
- Appetite falls and stabilises
- No extreme highs followed by severe plummets

Easily Kickstart Fat Loss in 5 Days

When the right amount of food is consumed at the right times, this results in balanced blood sugar levels throughout the day. The body can handle some sugar — but excessive amounts have an impact on fat loss.

The ideal blood sugar pattern

- Gentle peaks after each meal or snack — think balanced meals.
- Small peaks and troughs, not extremes.
- A blood sugar dip is your body's signal to eat.

The rollercoaster — highs and lows

Without balance, the day looks like this:

- Extreme highs
- Extreme lows
- Low mood / high mood
- Unbalanced overall
- More sugar cravings — and generally more sugar overall

Fat loss can be extremely difficult on this pattern.

Why Breakfast Is Important

When breakfast is skipped, blood sugar levels continue to dip and it becomes more likely that foods high in sugar will be reached for. Having breakfast within an hour of waking allows blood sugar and insulin levels to stabilise.

Including a protein element with breakfast helps with satiety (feeling of fullness) and sets the body up for the day — meaning less snacking on less nutrient-dense options throughout the day, which is exactly what supports fat loss.

The skip-breakfast cycle

- Blood sugar dips due to skipping breakfast.
- Body searches for a quick “hit” — shaky, hungry, tired — so sugar gets reached for.
- High spike followed by a big hit of insulin.
- Extreme high followed by extreme slump.
- The cycle continues.

Why Snacking Is Important

Snacking is really important — it helps keep blood sugar levels steady during the day. If food is eaten at regular intervals, dips in blood sugar are less likely, and reaching for less nutrient-dense foods for a kick of energy won't happen.

Snacking bridges the gap between breakfast and lunch, and then lunch and dinner. However, snacks should not be eaten just for the sake of it — snacking is meant to tide you over until the next meal.

With healthy snacks you get

- Gentle peaks after each meal or snack (think balanced meals).
- Small peaks and troughs.
- A blood sugar dip is your body's signal to eat — not stress.

The WLA Nutrition Formula.

At The WLA, we use our unique Nutrition Formula to help kickstart fat loss in as little as 5 days and support visible weight loss within a week.

This formula is built around portion control and a healthy balance of all food groups — carbohydrates, protein, and fats — rather than restriction or elimination.

The WLA Nutrition Formula focuses on building meals that are high in protein and adjusted to be low, medium, or higher in carbohydrates, depending on the meal and the individual. This teaches you how to create nutritionally balanced meals that support fat loss, improve health, and help reduce sugar cravings — while staying realistic and sustainable long term.
